SIPA LIQUIDATION

OBJECTION TO TRUSTEE'S DETERMINATION OF CLAIM

Murray Gold Trust FBO Gold Children ("Claimant"), by its attorneys, Bernfeld, DeMatteo & Bernfeld, LLP, hereby objects to the Notice of Trustee's Determination of Claim dated May 17, 2010 (the "Determination Letter"), as follows:

BACKGROUND FACTS

1. The relevant background facts are not in dispute. Simply stated, Bernard L. Madoff ("Madoff") and his company Bernard L. Madoff Securities ("BLMIS") perpetrated a massive fraud upon thousands of investors, causing a loss to investors in the billions of dollars. The fraud came to light in December 2008, when Madoff confessed his scheme and was arrested.

2. The scheme involved the reported purchase and sale by BLMIS for the various customer accounts of securities of existing, publicly-traded companies. Each reported transaction was confirmed in writing to each customer and the monthly customer statements reiterated and reconfirmed the representations made by BLMIS in those specific transaction confirmations. The account statements were consistent with the market prices for the securities listed so that any BLMIS customer could confirm the existence and the value of the securities and the transactions reported as having been conducted for their BLMIS account.

3. Following the public disclosure of the fraud, actions were commenced by the SEC and SIPC against, inter alia, BLMIS. On or about December 15, 2008, the Court directed the liquidation of BLMIS pursuant to the provisions of the SIPA and Irving Picard was designated by SIPC and appointed by the Court to act as the SIPC trustee (the "Trustee"). Mr. Picard then hired his law firm, Baker & Hostetler, to act as counsel to the Trustee.

4. Pursuant to order dated December 23, 2008, the Court empowered the Trustee:
- a. to disseminate and make available notice and claim forms to BLMIS customers for the filing of Customer Claims in the BLMIS Liquidation;
 - b. to advise Customers of the relevant claim-filing cut off dates; and
 - c. to determine in writing all filed customer claims, and to the extent that the Trustee disallowed any claim, whether in whole or in part, to provide the reason for such disallowance.

5. By in or about February 2009, the Trustee publicly announced that he would not calculate customer net equity on the basis of the written confirmations and account statements sent by BLMIS to the customers but, instead, would do so on the basis of what the Trustee labeled as his "cash in/cash out" methodology.

6. The last date for filing customer SIPA Claims was July 2, 2009 (the “Filing Deadline”).

7. Claimant timely filed a SIPC claim (the “Claim”) prior to the Filing Deadline. That Claim is incorporated by reference as if set forth at length herein.

8. Following the Filing Deadline, the Trustee issued various Determination Letters each of which applied the Trustee’s “cash in/cash out” definition of Net Equity.

9. As is set forth in greater detail below, the Trustee sent Claimant a determination letter dated May 17, 2010 (the “Determination Letter”), in which, inter alia, the Trustee: (i) denied Claimant’s claim for securities; (ii) denied Claimant’s SIPC’s claim in its entirety - not only with respect to the claim for a SIPC advance payment but also to participate in any subsequent distributions of Customer Property. The Determination Letter is incorporated by reference as if set forth at length herein.

10. Various customers filed formal written objections to those Determination Letters and to the “cash in/cash out” method of calculating net equity. In addition, several investor groups brought separate actions seeking to have the Court rule on the definitional dispute.

11. The Trustee objected to those actions and moved for their dismissal. In September 2009, however, the Trustee made an application to the Court seeking specific Court approval for his claim that a customer’s net equity under SIPA should be determined solely on the “cash in/cash out” methodology and that the customers’ account statements and the transaction confirmations the customers’ received for each separate transaction should be disregarded.

12. In accordance with the schedule fixed by the Court, various claimants filed papers in opposition to the Trustee's proposed Net Equity definition. These claimants' Memoranda are incorporated by reference as if set forth at length in these objections.

13. The Bankruptcy Court (Lifland, J.) granted the Trustee's motion and sustained the Trustee's "cash in/cash out" definition and methodology for determining each customer's Net Equity for SIPA purposes.

14. The Bankruptcy Court certified its decision for direct appeal to the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, on the joint application of the Trustee and counsel for various claimants and a petition to the Second Circuit for permission to file a direct appeal is currently pending.

THE CLAIM AND THE TRUSTEE'S DETERMINATION LETTER

15. Claimant is a "customer" of Bernard L. Madoff Investment Securities, LLC ("BLMIS") as that term as defined under the Securities Investor Protection Act (hereinafter "SIPA").

16. According to Claimant's final customer statement for Claimant's account at BLMIS dated November 30, 2008 (the "November Statement"), Claimant had securities in its BLMIS account valued at $960,587.05.

17. Claimant submitted its claim on the form provided by the Trustee (the "Claim"). Included in the Claim was a copy of Claimant's November Statement.

18. By letter dated May 17, 2010, which was received by Claimant subsequently, the Trustee sent Claimant a letter (the "Determination Letter") which, inter alia: (a) disallowed the claim for physical delivery of the securities set forth as being in Claimant's BLMIS account as of the November Statement; (b) disallowed Claimant's Net Equity claim in its entirety; and (c) rejected in its entirety Claimant's application for a SIPC advance payment.

19. According to the Determination Letter, there were total deposits to Claimants Account of $1,066,045.50 (exclusive of the reported profits, appreciation and any other credits to the account or any other substitute return on the investment) and alleged total withdrawals of $1,265,347.51.

20. However, the Determination Letter then “adjusted” downward the deposit credits to the accounts by refusing to recognize $770,225.70 of said deposits (the “Disputed Deposit Adjustment”). In addition, the Determination Letter failed to credit the account with the reported income, profits, appreciation and other credits reflected in the account which, upon information and belief, collectively were approximately $2,000,000 (the “Rejected Account Credits”).

21. The Trustee’s apparent rationale for this Disputed Deposit Adjustment disallowance was the erroneous belief that Claimant had simply transferred funds from one account of Claimant into Claimant’s current account and that, therefore, the Trustee’s Net Equity methodology allowed him to disallow any alleged appreciation that had previously been credited to a separate BLMIS customer account.

22. As a threshold matter, even if the Trustee’s factual assumption had been correct - which it is not - the Trustee would still have had no authority, even then, to reduce the amount of the account by the Disputed Deposit Adjustment.

23. As the Trustee’s records demonstrate, approximately $630,000 of the Disputed Deposits took place more than six (6) years prior to the filing of the SIPC liquidation which followed promptly after the disclosure of the BLMIS fraud in December 2008. As such, all of those transactions both in Claimant’s account and in any separate account from which the deposits allegedly emanated are all beyond all applicable statutes of limitations. As such, the Trustee had no legal or factual right to disallow those account credits and to effectively recoup those amounts as if they were not protected from such recoupment by the applicable statute of limitations.

24. Moreover, the accounts from which the Disputed Deposits emanated were not accounts in Claimant's name or under Claimant's control.

25. Further, the Disputed Deposits were made in conjunction with bona fide, arms length transactions pursuant to which, and for valuable consideration, the Disputed Deposits were made to Claimant's BLMIS account.

26. In disallowing Claimant's entire Net Equity claim, the Trustee completely disregarded the transaction confirmations and Account Statements received by Claimant from BLMIS which, as noted, reflected a substantial positive Net Equity in her account of $960,587.05.

27. Instead, using his "cash in/cash out" method, the Trustee "determined" that Claimant had a negative Net Equity of $969,527.71.

28. According to the Determination Letter, Claimant opened its account with BLMIS in or about 1997 and has maintained the account continuously to date (the "Account Period"). During the Account Period, Claimant received trade confirmations for each transaction and monthly statements from BLMIS representing that the confirmed transactions in specific real securities had taken place for the account.

29. At all times during the Account Period, Claimant reasonably believed that the Account Statement balances were accurate and reflected the securities and account values that Claimant owned and had on deposit with BLMIS.

30. At all times during the Account Period, Claimant believed Claimant was entitled to make withdrawals from Claimant's BLMIS account and that when doing so, Claimant was withdrawing its own money.

31. Each year during the Account Period, Claimant received official tax reporting forms from BLMIS advising and representing to Claimant's the amount of reportable BLMIS taxable income for the account that year based on the transactions reflected in the trade confirmations and account statements received by Claimant.

32. During the Account Period, tax returns included that BLMIS income and substantial taxes were paid thereon over that period.

SUMMARY OF OBJECTIONS

33. Claimant objects to the Trustee's Determination Letter and all claim determinations made in its entirety except for the Trustee's acknowledgment that Claimant is a BLMIS customer.

34. Claimant's Objections are predicated, inter alia, on the SIPA statute and regulations and on the cases interpreting SIPA.

35. The Determination Letter is erroneous and the determinations contained therein are objectionable for a variety of reasons including, inter alia, the following:

- a. The Determination Letter fails to provide "legal reasons" for the determinations made, in violation of this Court's order dated December 23, 2008, mandating that specific reasons be provided for each claim disallowed;
- b. The Trustee has ignored the definition of Net Equity contained in the SIPA statute which requires that Net Equity be determined based upon the customer's last account statement from the Debtor. Instead, without any lawful basis, he has created his own definition-cash in/cash out - which deprives Claimant and thousands of other BLMIS investor claimants of their proper SIPA statutory advance and improperly reduces the proper Net Equity/allowable claim of those claimants.

- c. SIPA is designed to give effect to the reasonable expectations of the customer of a failed SIPC member brokerage firm. When a customer receives trade confirmations and monthly account statements reflecting transactions in real securities available for purchase in the marketplace, that customer's Net Equity under SIPA is the amount of the customer's last account statement, thereby giving effect to the customer's reasonable expectations. Therefore, the Trustee was required to determine Claimant's Net Equity on the basis of, and in the amount of, the Claimant's last account statement, not on the basis of his cash in/cash out construct.
- d. The Trustee should have allowed and paid Claimant a full SIPC advance of $500,000 since, under the proper definition of Net Equity, Claimant has a positive Net Equity substantially in excess of $500,000.
- e. Even under the Trustee's flawed definition, the Determination Letter improperly reduces the amount of deposits credited to Claimant's account by the Disallowed Deposit Adjustment.
- f. The Disallowed Deposit Adjustment reflect actual deposits to Claimants account which the Trustee (and the Determination Letter) had no legal or factual right to treat as nullities.
- g. Moreover, the Disallowed Deposit Adjustment: (i) relates to bona fide deposits; (ii) made and received in good faith; and (iii) involved transactions which took place before the last applicable statute of limitations to challenge their validity. As a result, in treating such Disallowed Deposit Adjustment as nullities, the Trustee has, without any judicial determination, unilaterally effected and imposed a judgment against Claimant in the amount of the Disallowed Deposits, as if the Trustee had brought and succeeded in a fraudulent conveyance action - a result that the Trustee could not lawfully accomplish in court.
- h. The Trustee owes a fiduciary duty to the BLMIS customers and pursuant to that duty is obliged to assert on behalf of those customers, interpretations of SIPA which, in good faith, maximize the statutory benefits to the customers. In violation of that duty, the Trustee has adopted a definition of Net Equity which is antithetical to the customers best interests and to their entitlement to SIPC advances and payments. The Trustee's proposed definition deprives BLMIS customers of millions of dollars of SIPC payments which, according to their respective account statements, they were entitled to receive. The sole beneficiary of this deprivation is SIPC which (i) avoids having to pay those millions in SIPC claims, and (ii) will be able to recoup, through subrogation, even those limited SIPC advances it actually makes (because the Net Equity claims of BLMIS investors will have been artificially and improperly reduced or eliminated).

- i. SIPC has previously represented to the Courts of this district see, e.g., (in the New Times Securities case) that if a customer receives trade confirmations and monthly account statements reflecting transactions in real securities available for purchase in the marketplace, that customer's Net Equity under SIPA equals the amount of the customer's last account statement. Under well settled principles of estoppel, neither SIPC nor the Trustee is now free to propose a wholly different and contrary definition of Net Equity which effectively seeks to disavow this prior judicial representation.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS

FIRST OBJECTION

THE TRUSTEE'S WRONGFUL REFUSAL TO DELIVER IN KIND SECURITIES

36. The Determination Letter disallows Claimant's demand for delivery of the Securities listed in Claimant's Account Statement.

37. The Determination Letter says that "No securities were ever purchased for your account". While that may-or may not-be an accurate factual statement, it provides no legal reason for the Trustee's refusal to purchase in kind securities in the market place for delivery to the BLMIS customers, including Claimant.

38. Under SIPA, the Trustee and SIPC are required to purchase and deliver in kind securities when, as here, the confirmations and account statement reflect ownership of real securities which are capable of being purchased in the marketplace (subject only to the dollar limitations of SIPA).¹

39. The Determination Letter's disallowance of Claimant's demand for delivery of in kind securities violates the clear mandate of SIPA and must be overruled.

40. Moreover, the Trustee's claim that no investment transactions occurred with respect to investor funds and that no profits were ever generated therefrom is factually erroneous and in direct conflict with allegations contained in Federal Grand Jury Indictments and SEC complaints brought against former Madoff employees.

SECOND OBJECTION

THE TRUSTEE IS USING AN IMPROPER AND UNAUTHORIZED DEFINITION OF NET EQUITY

41. Under SIPA, when a customer has received confirmations of transactions in real securities and when the customer's account statement reflects ownership of real securities, the customer's net equity is to be determined by, and is equal to, the customer's last account statement value.

42. Claimant's last BLMIS Account Statement account reflects a positive balance – a SIPA Net Equity - of in excess of one million three hundred thousand ($1,300,000) Dollars.

43. The Determination Letter states that the Trustee has used a "cash in/cash out"

The trustee shall, to the extent that securities can be purchased in a fair and orderly market, purchase securities as necessary for the delivery of securities to customers in satisfaction of their claims for net equities ...

15 U.S.C. §78fff-2(d)

method of determining customer Net Equity which violates the clear statutory definition of Net Equity.

44. In the Trustee's Determination Letter, he admits that Claimant's Net Equity was determined based on the "cash in/cash out" methodology, rather than on the basis of the customer's last account statement as SIPA requires.²

45. The SIPA statute (15 U.S.C. §78lll(11)) defines Net Equity in clear and straightforward terms, as follows:

The term 'net equity' means the dollar amount of the account or accounts of a customer, to be determined by -
(A) calculating the sum which would have been owed by the debtor to such customer if the debtor had liquidated, by sale or purchase on the filing date, all securities positions of such customer...; minus
(B) any indebtedness of such customer to the debtor on the filing date...³

46. Congressional history confirms that SIPA is focused on the customer's reasonable expectations, in order to foster investor confidence in the securities markets. Thus, for example, as the Senate Report on the 1978 SIPA amendment bill explains:

By seeking to make customer accounts whole and returning them to customers in the form they existed on the filing date, the amendment not only would satisfy the customers' legitimate expectations, but would also restore the customer to his position prior to the broker-dealer's financial difficulties.

² The Determination Letter simply recites that the Trustee has determined Net Equity on the "cash in/cash out method" but that is simply a statement of fact and provides no legally cognizable reason for the Trustee to ignore the SIPA statutory definition of Net Equity, the controlling cases or SIPC's prior acknowledgments (judicial and otherwise) that in these circumstances, a customer's Net equity is equal to the customer's last account statement.

S.Rep No. 763, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. (1978) at 2 (See also, Claimant's Memorandum of Law).

47. Thus, as a matter of logic, legislative history and controlling case law, it is clear that a customer's reasonable expectation is to receive what he or she has been told is contained in his or her accounts. Accordingly, the Account Statement balance is the customer's SIPA net equity.

THIRD OBJECTION

SIPC HAS PREVIOUSLY REPRESENTED THAT NET EQUITY IS DETERMINED BY THE CUSTOMER'S LAST ACCOUNT STATEMENT BALANCE AND IS ESTOPPED FROM ASSERTING A CONTRARY DEFINITION NOW.

48. In the New Times Securities case, SIPC represented in its court submissions that a customer's Net Equity is determined by the customers account statement when (as here): (i) the securities at issue are real and could be purchased in the market place; and (ii) the customer has received written confirmations and account statements reflecting what has allegedly been purchased for the customer's account.

49. The Second Circuit in New Times Securities quoted with approval the following statement from the Trustee's and SIPC's appellate brief to the Court on the issue of customer expectations and the proper definition of net equity:

[I]nvestors that were misled by Goren to believe that they were investing in mutual funds that in reality existed were treated much more favorably [than those who were led to invest in the fictitious funds]. Although they were not actually invested in those real funds-because Goren never executed the transactions-the information that these claimants received on their account statements ‘mirrored what would have happened had the given transactions been executed’ Br. For Appellants [SIPC Trustee and SIPC]. As a result, the Trustee deemed those customers claims to be ‘securities claims’ eligible to receive up to $500,000 in SIPC advances. The Trustee indicates that this disparate treatment was justified because he could purchase real, existing securities to satisfy such securities claims. Furthermore, the Trustee notes that, if they were checking on their mutual funds, the ‘securities claimants’ in contrast to the ‘cash claimants’ bringing this appeal could have confirmed the existence of those funds and tracked the funds’ performance against Goren’s account statements.

50. This definition of Net Equity, utilized by SIPA and the SIPA trustee in the New Times Securities case, reflects the proper definition of Net Equity under SIPA, consistent with the reasonable expectations of the customers.

51. There has been no change in the definition of Net Equity under SIPA since the New Times Securities case. Nevertheless, the BLMIS Trustee in these proceedings is essentially ignoring that controlling authority as well as repudiating SIPC’s prior judicial representations and admissions, all in an effort to reduce SIPC’s financial exposure and responsibilities to aggrieved BLMIS customers, such as Claimant.

52. In the lower court proceedings in New Times Securities, the following transcribed colloquy between SIPC President Stephen Harbeck and the Court occurred in open Court:

Harbeck: ...if you file [a timely SIPC claim] you’ll get the securities without question. Whether - if they triple in value, you’ll get the securities... Even if they’re not there.

Court: Even if they’re not there.

Harbeck: Correct.

Court: In other words, if the money was diverted, converted-

Harbeck: And the securities were never purchased.

Court: Okay.

Harbeck: And if those positions triple we will gladly give the people their securities positions.

Tr. at 37-39, In re New Times Securities Services, Inc., OO-8178 (Bkrcty. E.D.N.Y. July 28, 2000) (emphasis added).

53. Moreover, shortly after the Madoff scandal became public, SIPC's general counsel also acknowledged SIPC's obligation to replace securities as reflected in the following interview:

[I]f clients were presented statements and had reason to believe that the securities were in fact owned, the SIPC will be required to buy these securities in the open market to make the customer whole up to $500k each. So if a Madoff client ... was given a statement showing they owned 1000 GOOG shares, even if a transaction never took place, the SIPC has to buy and replace the 1000 GOOG shares.

Insiders' Blog December 16, 2008, www.occ.treas.gov/ftp/alert/2008-37.html.

54. Under well settled principles of estoppel, a party is not permitted to ignore prior judicial representations and admissions nor to assert contentions that are contrary to that party's earlier judicial representations.

55. The BLMIS Trustee's definition of net equity seeks to disavow SIPC's prior judicial representations and public statements by SIPC.

56. Under these circumstances, SIPA and the Trustee should be precluded from repudiating their prior judicial assertions and should, instead, be compelled to calculate BLMIS customer Net Equity on the basis of the last BLMIS customer account statements.

57. Accordingly, the Determination Letter's attempted disavowal of the net equity definition represented as correct by SIPC in prior judicial proceedings is barred by judicial estoppel and the Trustee's Claim disallowance must be overruled.

FOURTH OBJECTION

THE DETERMINATION LETTER CLAIM DISALLOWANCE IGNORES THE FACT THAT EACH SECURITIES TRANSACTION WAS CONFIRMED TO CLAIMANT BY BLMIS AND WAS REFLECTED IN CLAIMANT'S ACCOUNT STATEMENTS. UNDER SIPA, THOSE CONFIRMED TRANSACTIONS WILL BE GIVEN BINDING EFFECT IN CALCULATING NET EQUITY EVEN IF, AS HERE, THE BROKER LIED AND NO TRANSACTIONS ACTUALLY TOOK PLACE.

58. All of Claimant's securities transactions, as reflected in Claimant's account, were confirmed to Claimant's by written trade confirmations from BLMIS as well as account statements from BLMIS reflecting those transactions.

59. In accordance with Claimant's customer agreement with BLMIS, the transactions became binding unless written objection was made within thirty (30) days of receipt.

60. Under clear industry regulations applicable to broker-dealers such as BLMIS, trade confirmations and accounts statements rendered to a customer by a broker-dealer are binding on the broker-dealer and may not subsequently be disavowed.

61. SIPC's series 500 rules are to the same effect. Thus, Rule 502 provides as follows:

Where the Debtor held cash in an account for a customer, the customer 'has a claim for securities' with respect to any authorized securities purchase: (1) if the Debtor has sent a written confirmation to the customer that the securities in question have been purchased for or sold to the customer's account

62. The applicable cases also squarely hold that when addressing transactions involving real securities, confirmations and account statements issued by the broker to the customer are controlling and will be binding.

63. All of the securities which were the subject of those written trade confirmations and account statements reflected transactions for Claimant's account in real securities which were available to be purchased in the open market.

64. In such circumstances, Net Equity must be determined by the claimant's last BLMIS Account Statement, even if the broker lied and no transactions in those securities actually took place.

65. The Determination Letter disallowance ignores the transaction confirmations and Account statements received by Claimant and those disallowance must be overruled..

FIFTH OBJECTION

ASSUMING ARGUENDO THAT THE TRUSTEE'S NET EQUITY DEFINITION IS CORRECT, THE DETERMINATION LETTER ERRONEOUSLY DISALLOWS SIGNIFICANT DEPOSITS TO CLAIMANT'S BLMIS ACCOUNT

66. Even under the Trustee's flawed definition of Net Equity, the Trustee has failed to give Claimant proper credit for almost one million dollars of deposits actually made to Claimant's BLMIS account.

67. Although the Determination Letter acknowledges that the Disputed Deposits was made to Claimant's account, the Determination Letter disallows credit for almost $1,000,000 of deposits.

68. The Determination Letter improperly reduces the amount of recognized deposits in Claimant's account by improperly treating as nullities transactions which were bona fide deposits entitled to full credit.

69. Moreover, under the guise of calculating Claimant's net equity, the Determination Letter actually imposes a fraudulent conveyance offset without any judicial determination and with respect to transactions which occurred well beyond the applicable statute of limitations for the Trustee to challenge.

70. In doing so, the Trustee (and the Determination Letter) seek to avoid clear statutory limits on his ability to challenge transactions which occurred beyond the stated limitations statutes.

71. Thus even under the Trustee's flawed net equity definition, the Determination Letter improperly disallowed substantial deposits which should have been credited to Claimant's net equity and allowed claim.

72. The Determination Letter disallowance of said deposits in the calculation of Claimant's net equity was improper and must be overruled.

SIXTH OBJECTION

THE DETERMINATION LETTER ERRONEOUSLY DISALLOWED THE APPRECIATION AND PROFITS REFLECTED IN CLAIMANTS ACCOUNT.

A. If the Disallowance of Appreciation Is Sustained, Then Claimant's Net Equity must Be Credited with Interest at the New York Judgement Rate.

73. New York law clearly provides for the payment of prejudgment interest in light of the conversion of property that occurred and the fraud perpetrated by BLMIS on the BLMIS customers, including Claimant.

74. Accordingly, should it be determined, arguendo, that Claimant's Net Equity does not include the cumulative appreciation in Claimant's account as reflected in the November Statement, then Claimant's Net Equity must include, and be increased by, interest at the legal rate applicable to New York Judgments.

75. The Determination Letter disallows all appreciation in Claimant's account in the net equity/allowed claim calculation and does not, as an alternative, include an interest component as required by law.

76. The Determination Letter must be overruled.

B. If the Disallowance of Appreciation Is Sustained,
Then Claimant's Net Equity must Be Credited
With Appreciation from Transactions Which Took Place
Prior To The Formation of BLMIS.

77. Upon information and belief, on or about December 4, 2000, BLMIS was formed as a domestic Limited Liability Company under the laws of the State of New York.

78. In this proceeding, the Trustee has been appointed by the Court to conduct a liquidation of BLMIS under and in accordance with the SIPA statute.

79. Upon information and belief, in or about December 2000, Claimant's account at BLMIS was credited with deposits of securities and cash, as the starting principal deposit in Claimant's BLMIS account.

80. The Trustee's Determination Letter purports to justify his denial of Claimant's Net Equity and SIPC advance claim based upon alleged transactions and events which preceded the formation of BLMIS.

81. In doing so, the Trustee is acting beyond his lawful mandate which is limited to the liquidation under SIPA of BLMIS.

82. By reason of the foregoing, the Trustee's Determination Letter is invalid and Claimant's Net Equity claim under SIPA should be allowed in full, as filed.

C. If the Disallowance of Appreciation Is Sustained,
Then Claimant's Net Equity must Be Credited
With Taxes That Claimant Was Induced To Pay.

83. Claimant has reported and paid taxes on the income reported to have been earned in Claimant's Madoff and BLMIS accounts.

84. According to the Trustee, however, there were no actual profits or income and no taxes should have required to be paid by Claimant.

85. Madoff and BLMIS caused and induced Claimant to report said income and profits on Claimant's tax returns and to pay taxes thereon based on the written information provided to Claimant and to the Taxing authorities by Madoff and BLMIS.

86. Even under the Trustee's cash in/cash out methodology, if there were actual profits and income generated for Claimant's account, that income and those profits should be allowed as actual principal deposits to the account.

87. If, arguendo, all such reported income and profits were fictitious, Claimant is entitled to have the principal of Claimant's account credited with the taxes Claimant was wrongfully induced to pay based on the reported Madoff and BLMIS income and profits as damages proximately caused by the fraud of Madoff and BLMIS.

88. By reason of the foregoing, even under the cash in/cash out method, Claimant's Net Equity must be increased to reflect (i) actual profits and income for Claimant's account; and (ii) taxes paid by Claimant with respect to any reported profits and income found to have been fictitious or otherwise not now credited to Claimant's account.

SEVENTH OBJECTION

THE DETERMINATION LETTER DISALLOWANCE FAILS TO GIVE EFFECT TO THE REASONABLE EXPECTATIONS OF CUSTOMERS, AS SIPA REQUIRES, AND THE NET EQUITY
DEFINITION IT UTILIZES WOULD RESULT IN A DRASTIC
LOSS OF INVESTOR CONFIDENCE IN THE MARKETS, AGAIN IN VIOLATION OF SIPA'S STATED GOALS AND PURPOSES

89. The primary purposes of Congress in enacting SIPA was to (a) protect customers and give effect to their reasonable expectations, and (b) to foster investor confidence in the securities markets.

90. Under SIPA, the customer's reasonable expectations is that they receive what they have been told is in their accounts based on transaction confirmations and account statements.

91. As noted above, Claimant received trade confirmations and monthly account statements throughout the Account Period for the various transactions set forth in Claimant's BLMIS account.

92. Claimant reasonably believed that Claimant's BLMIS account statement properly reflected what Claimant had on deposit with BLMIS, that said property was Claimant's, and that Claimant was entitled to withdraw and use that property as Claimant's own, without restrictions or potential recapture.

93. The Trustee's flawed Net Equity definition frustrates the customers reasonable expectations and promotes distrust by investors in the public securities markets.

94. Thus the Trustee's definition of Net Equity violates the clear and express public policy interests that SIPA was designed to promote.

95. Accordingly, the Trustee's definition of Net Equity, and the Determination Letter implementing that definition, should be rejected as erroneous and in conflict with the SIPA statute.

EIGHTH OBJECTION

THE DEFINITION OF NET EQUITY USED IN THE DETERMINATION LETTER TO DISALLOW THE CLAIM VIOLATES SIPA'S STATED PURPOSE TO GIVE PREFERENCE TO THE BROKER'S CUSTOMERS
OVER GENERAL NON-CUSTOMER CREDITORS

96. The Trustee's Net Equity definition also results in a reduced Net Equity allowance for substantial numbers of BLMIS customers, thus reducing the aggregate net equity of the BLMIS customer class.

97. SIPA specifically provides that the customers of a failed broker-dealer are entitled to a statutory preference over general non-customer creditors of the debtor and their allowed Net equity must be paid in full before any payments are made to general non-customer creditors.

98. By artificially reducing the aggregate net equity of the BLMIS customer class, the Trustee is violating that statutory preference thereby benefitting the general creditor class at the expense of the Customer class which SIPA was enacted to protect.

99. The Determination Letter disallowing the Claim contributes to this improper failure to honor the statutory preference that the customers are to receive and, as a result, the disallowance of the Claim must be overruled.

NINTH OBJECTION

THE TRUSTEE HAS NOT DEMONSTRATED THAT A PONZI SCHEME EXISTED THROUGHOUT
OR WHEN IT FIRST BEGAN. THE REAL INCOME AND PROFITS FROM ALL OF THE MADOFF/BLMIS
SECURITIES TRANSACTIONS SHOULD BE CREDITED TO INVESTORS AS
AS REAL TRANSACTIONS AND PROFITS

100. Upon information and belief, Madoff, from approximately 1960 until December 2000 when BLMIS was formed, Madoff operated his securities business as a sole proprietor under his individual name

101. Upon information and belief, from 1960 to December 2000, Madoff's business operations included and encompassed various aspects and functions in the Securities business, all under the same business entity, namely Bernard L. Madoff, sole proprietor. These activities included, inter alia, a market making operation, trading and an Investment Advisor business, pursuant to which Madoff received billions from investors to invest for them..

102. Upon information and belief, following the formation of BLMIS in December 2000, the securities business and operations previously operated by Madoff as a sole proprietor was thereafter conducted by BLMIS, an LLC formed under the laws of the State of New York owned 100 % by Madoff.

103. Upon information and belief, the market making operations of Madoff and BLMIS and the trading operations engaged in by Madoff and BLMIS involved transactions in securities which included the securities that Madoff and BLMIS reported had been transacted for the IA customers.

104. Upon information and belief, for a substantial period of time from and after 1960, neither Madoff nor BLMIS operated a classic Ponzi scheme in the sense that such scheme is commonly understood and instead engaged in substantial securities transactions which should have and could have properly been credited to the IA customers.

105. Upon information and belief, for many years from and after 1960, Madoff engaged in his securities transactions using methods and strategies other than his alleged split strike conversion strategy. In that regard, many of his early transactions for investors were arbitrage trades which, upon information and belief, were real and profitable.

106. According to statements made public either by the Trustee or in plea allocutions by Madoff and ex-madoff employees (including Frank DiPasquali), Madoff did not claim to be engaged in a Split Strike Conversion strategy until approximately 1997 or 1998.

107. It is presently unknown whether and when Madoff actually commenced his alleged Ponzi scheme- although it appears that it did not happen until sometime after he allegedly began to use the Split Strike Conversion strategy for his IA customers.

108. Accordingly, all transactions and profits confirmed and reported to the customers prior to the commencement of any alleged Ponzi scheme by Madoff or BLMIS was properly credited to and was the property of the investors to whom the transactions and profits were reported— even under the Trustee’s flawed “cash in/cash out” method of calculating Net Equity.

109. The Trustee has the burden of proving when the alleged Ponzi scheme commenced and whether all transactions reported to customers were included in the alleged Ponzi scheme.

110. In that regard, upon information and belief, the Trustee has failed to allocate transactions effected in the market making and trading operations of Madoff/BLMIS for the various customer accounts notwithstanding that such trades frequently were in many of the same securities that Madoff/BLMIS reported had been purchased and sold for the accounts of the investors.

111. Moreover, during the period from and after the alleged commencement of the Split Strike Conversion strategy until Madoff confessed in December 2008, the IA funds received from investors by Madoff/BLMIS were invested in income producing transactions and securities including Treasury bills and other interest bearing government instruments. In addition, until December 2008, when Madoff confessed, the investors collectively should have been credited with their pro rata share of the profits generated from securities transactions executed by Madoff and/or BLMIS in the market making and trading operations of Madoff/BLMIS.

112. By reason of the foregoing, Claimant's account should be credited with all transactions and profits reported and confirmed to Claimant by Madoff for all periods up to and including the date, if ever, that the Trustee demonstrates, based on legally sufficient clear and convincing evidence, that all the profits were fictitious and were all solely the result of an actual Ponzi scheme.

TENTH OBJECTION

FAILURE TO PROVIDE REASONS FOR CLAIM DISALLOWANCE

113. The Order of December 23, 2008, requires the Trustee to provide "the reasons" in writing, for any claim disallowance.

114. Although the Trustee's Determination Letter disallows Claimant's claim in its entirety, the Determination Letter fails to provide any legal basis or reasons for that disallowance.

115. The most that can be said is that the Determination Letter makes certain factual statements which, however, does not provide “legal reasons” for the disallowance as specifically directed by the Court.

116. Accordingly, the Determination Letter is deficient, fails to comply with the Court’s specific mandate and the claim disallowance made by the Trustee must be vacated.

ELEVENTH OBJECTION

THE DETERMINATION LETTER CLAIM DISALLOWANCE VIOLATES THE TRUSTEE’S FIDUCIARY OBLIGATIONS TO CLAIMANT AND THE OTHER BLMIS CUSTOMERS

117. Under SIPA, the person designated and appointed by the Court to act as Trustee in a SIPA liquidation owes the customers of the debtor firm a fiduciary duty to act in their best interest and to advocate for them to the maximum extent permitted by law.

118. The Trustee owes no such comparable duty to SIPC.

119. The Determination Letter sent by the Trustee to Claimant demonstrates facially that the Trustee is acting in a manner inconsistent with the duties he owes to customers of BLMIS, including Claimant.

120. The Trustee’s definition of Net Equity, if allowed to stand, will substantially reduce the number of BLMIS customers who, like Claimant, should qualify for a full SIPC advance, but will receive nothing from SIPC.⁴

121. The only party that benefits from the Trustee’s SIPC “definition” of Net Equity is SIPC itself which, as a result, will be relieved of its statutory obligations to thousands of

⁴ Moreover, even if a customer qualifies for some SIPC payment, that payment will frequently be for an amount less than the customer should have received under a proper Net equity definition.

BLMIS customers and save hundreds of millions of dollars. There will be no benefit to any other customer or the customer class generally.

122. The Trustee should be asserting the most favorable application of SIPA for the benefit of the customers, not one that deprives the customer of significant SIPA rights and benefits. However, the Trustee has chosen a definition for the application of SIPC advances which is adverse to the customers to whom a fiduciary duty is owed.

123. As a result of this breach , the Determination Letter improperly disallows Claimant's SIPA net equity in its entirety.

124. Under the proper statutory definition of net equity which the Trustee was obligated to apply, Claimant's Claim should have been allowed in its entirety.

125. In that regard, in violation of this fiduciary duty, the Trustee's Determination Letter improperly deprived Claimant of at least the following relief to which Claimant is entitled:

1. A $500,000 SIPA allowance in the form of securities in kind or, in the alternative, a cash payment in that amount;
2. A determination that Claimant has a positive Net Equity for SIPA purposes of in excess of One Million Three Hundred Thousand ($1,300,000) Dollars and an allowed claim in that amount;
3. A determination that Claimant is entitled to share pro rata in all BLMIS customer property based upon an allowed claim of in excess of One Million Three Hundred Thousand ($1,300,000) Dollars

126. In view of the Trustee's fiduciary obligations, the Determination Letter disallowing the Claim constitutes a breach of duty and requires that the disallowance contained in the Determination Letter be overruled.

TWELFTH OBJECTION

THE TRUSTEE OWES CLAIMANT AND OTHER BLMIS
CUSTOMERS A FIDUCIARY DUTY WHICH IS VIOLATED
BY THE TRUSTEE'S NET EQUITY ARGUMENT

127. As a fiduciary for BLMIS customers, including Claimant, the Trustee should be asserting positions that favor those to whom he owes a fiduciary duty - which in this circumstance means arguing for a definition of Net Equity that benefits the Customer class, not one that favors SIPC at the expense of the customers.

128. Given the Trustee's fiduciary obligations, if there is a conflict or dispute between the Customers and SIPC, the Trustee is duty bound to make bona fide arguments that support the customer's contentions. Here, however, the Trustee has adopted a definition that supports and benefits SIPC at the expense of the customer.

129. Under the circumstances, Claimant: (a) objects to the Trustee adopting and implementing a definition of Net Equity which favors a third party like SIPC, at the expense of the Trustee's lawful fiduciaries; and (b) seeks a direction from the Court to the Trustee to discharge his duties under SIPA consistent with the fiduciary duties imposed on him by SIPA and by other applicable law.

THIRTEENTH OBJECTION

THE TRUSTEE HAS DEPRIVED CLAIMANT OF FACTUAL DISCOVERY NECESSARY TO ALLOW
CLAIMANT TO DEMONSTRATE THAT THE CLAIM SHOULD NOT HAVE BEEN DENIED AND, INSTEAD,
SHOULD HAVE BEEN ALLOWED IN FULL. CLAIMANT
RESERVES THE RIGHT TO AMEND AND/OR SUPPLEMENT
THE OBJECTIONS TO THE DETERMINATION LETTER
FOLLOWING APPROPRIATE FACT DISCOVERY.

130. Although almost 1½ years have elapsed since the BLMIS SIPA liquidation commenced, upon information and belief, the Trustee has failed and refused to provide meaningful-or any-fact discovery. This is particularly distressing and prejudicial to Claimants and others similarly situated since the transaction which allegedly form the basis for the Determination Letter concern transactions now more than a decade old. Claimant requires discovery of the facts to allow Claimant properly to prepare for and litigate why the Determination letter should be vacated and Claimant's Net Equity be determined in full, in accordance with Claimant's previously filed SIPA Net Equity claim.

CONCLUSION

The Determination Letter and the rejection of Claimant's SIPC claims contained therein should be rejected and overruled in all respects. Claimant's Net Equity should be allowed in the amount set forth in Claimant's November 2008 account statement. Claimant should receive a full $500,000 SIPC advance. Claimant should be granted such other and further relief in favor of Claimant as to the Court appears just and proper.
